

System Deployment Guide App Web

As a software developer

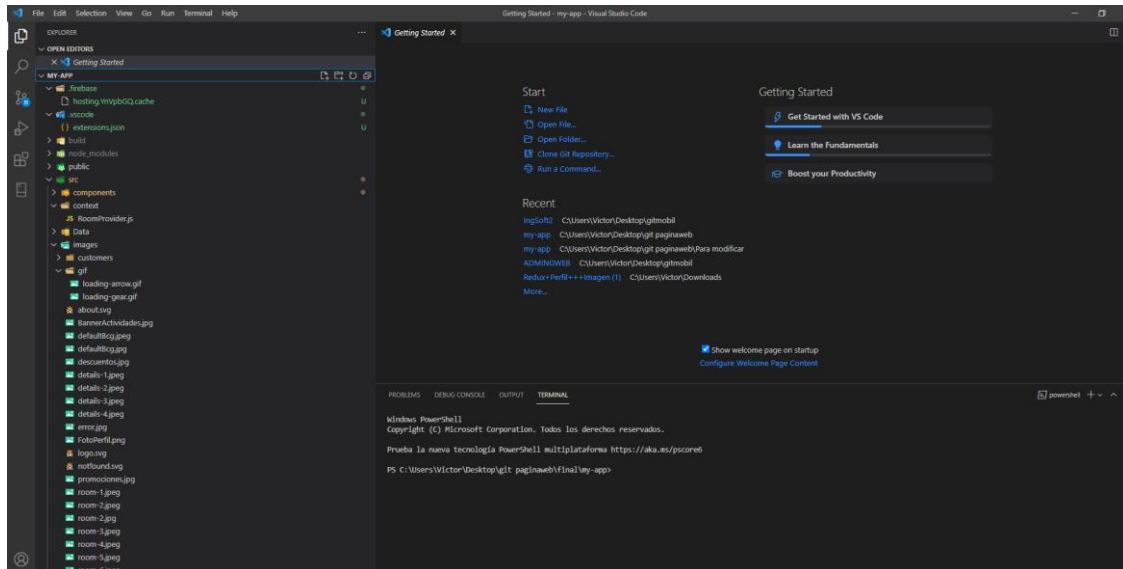

To use the page as an application manager, we recommend that you use "Visual Studio Code",because many dependencies and components are used for it. The customer is also required to read"Firebase","Boostrap 5" documentation and have knowledge of the JavaScript programming language.

After the project is downloaded, copied or cloned. We recommend that you drag or open the project folder from your program.

Once the folder of our program is already open, it is required to open a TERMINAL, for which we could press `ctr+ñ` or place ourselves in the tab that says Terminal and select new terminal.

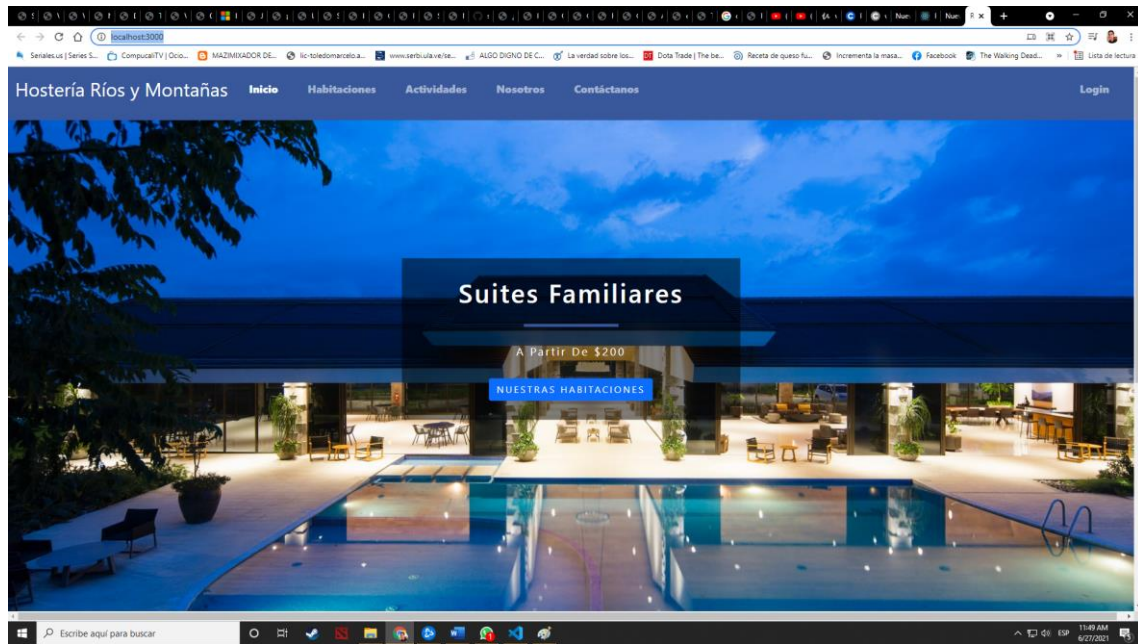

After this, we need to place a line of code to install everything that our project requires:

PS C:\Users\Victor\Desktop\git\paginaweb\final\my-app> npm install

After waiting for our project to be installed, we can run it locally without other people being able to see what we want to fix, with the following command.

PS C:\Users\Victor\Desktop\git\paginaweb\final\my-app> npm start

> my-app@0.1.0 start > react-scripts start

We expect it to load our environment locally and open a window with a local server as follows.

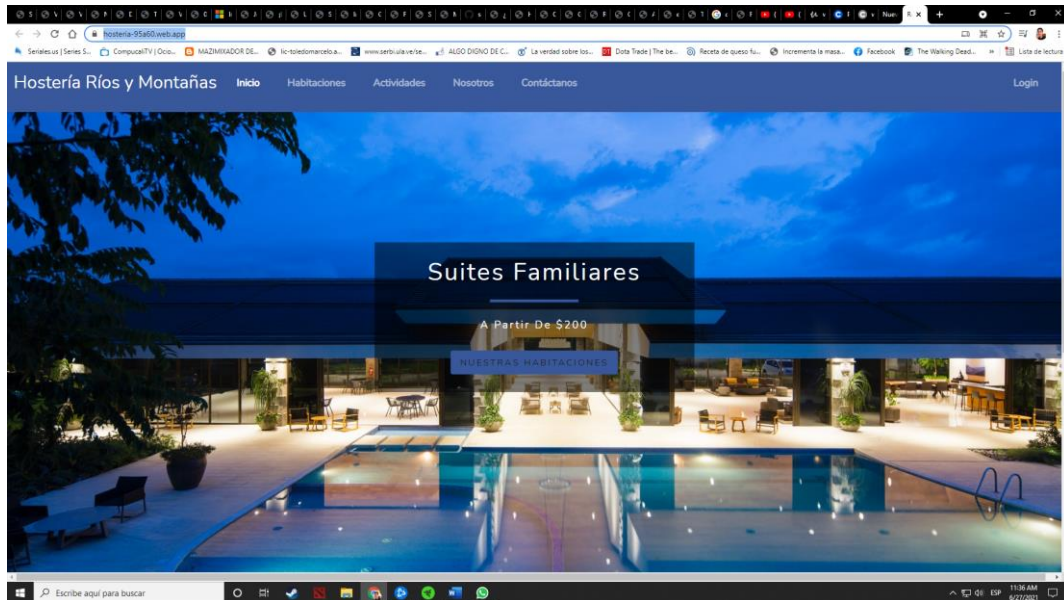

We will have as a local server the port configured to perform our tests at the time a change is made, the changes are displayed in real form.
